WE HAVE DECLARED WAR ON POTHOLES.

Seemingly overnight potholes can show up in the road without any warning.

They tear up our cars and set our nerves on edge as we swerve to avoid them and are shocked with a jarring impact when we don't see them. If the wear and tear on our vehicles and nerves isn't bad enough, they can cause hundreds of thousands of dollars of repair costs on our roads each year.

Mayor Westmoreland

Our roads already take a pounding from daily traffic. Changing temperatures cause the road material to expand and contract. Before long tiny cracks start to appear. That is why crack sealing is part of our annual maintenance. Potholes form when water works its way down into the road material and temperatures drop below freezing. The freezing water expands and causes a swell. When the tar that holds the road together freezes it becomes brittle. The brittle road pushed up by ice from underneath and slammed by tons of force from vehicles above is like a window getting hit by a baseball. That is why they appear so suddenly and randomly. Then like a tear in fabric, if left untreated they can quickly spread and become a much bigger problem.

temperatures so it can go down a soon as the road is dry. It is so tough it can be used to repair whole sections of roads and will last long enough to be a permanent repair.

We hope you will notice improvement with potholes as we implement this new process.

The common method used to treat them has been to send out a crew with asphalt and fill the holes. The problem with this is the same reason we don't build roads in the winter - it doesn't work very well in winter conditions. This method is better than nothing but often needs to be repeated until the weather warms.

Now we have a new weapon to bring potholes into submission. Last year we tested a product and were so impressed with the results that we purchased our own equipment, specially designed to deal with the recurring problem. Though we call it road patch it is more like Gorilla Glue for roads. It is not as finicky about

EMERGENCY PREPARATION TIP

Earthquakes

Earthquake damage can extend for miles from the epicenter of these traumatic shifts in the earth's crust, resulting in collapsed buildings, bridges and overpasses, cracked roadways, downed power lines, broken gas lines, fires, explosions, and landslides.

Preparing Your Home

Secure major appliances to both the floor and the wall.

Move large objects and breakable items to lower shelves.

Fasten pictures and mirrors securely to walls.

Install flexible pipe fittings to minimize breakage of gas and water lines.

During an Earthquake

If you are inside a building stay there.

Hide under a table or desk, or crouch in a corner or against a wall. Use a doorway for shelter only if you know it's strongly supported.

Stay away from windows and bookcases.

If you are outside stay there, but away from power lines, buildings and anything else that can fall.

If you are in a vehicle, stay inside it but park in a safe place. Avoid stopping on bridges, near buildings or trees, or under overpasses and power lines.

After an Earthquake

Be cautious - Aftershocks can further damage weakened structures.

Stay off the streets.

Check media for the latest emergency information.

Check your home for structural damage. If in doubt, call a qualified professional to inspect it.

Inspect water pipes and electrical lines at your home.

Check appliances and utilities. If you smell gas, open a window and leave then turn off main gas valve then call the gas company.

Open cabinets carefully.

SAFEUT APP HELPS THOSE IN CRISIS

The SafeUT smartphone app offers 24/7 help for suicidal thoughts, depression, anxiety, loss, bullying, or substance abuse.

Suicide affects every family and every community. Thanks to a smartphone app, help is available 24/7 for young people, their parents, guardians, and others who experience depression, anxiety, loss, grief, bullying/cyberbullying, self-harming behaviors, suicidal thoughts, or drug or alcohol problems.

SafeUT answers crisis calls, texts, and chats—from the young person reaching out or from others. It provides free real-time crisis intervention for people in need.

We encourage parents to help their youth download the SafeUT app and talk to them about the importance of reaching out if they're worried about someone they know.

Some of the warning signs for someone dealing with suicidal thoughts include:

- Hopeless/helpless thoughts
- Social isolation
- Talk of being a burden on others—how others would be better off without them
- Giving away prized possessions

"Today's world is very different from the world many of us grew up in," said Jessica Strong, Community Health and Outreach Manager for Intermountain's Primary Children's Hospital. "Young people are at greater risk in many ways. If we see warning signs of suicidal thoughts, we need to take them seriously."

For more information on the SafeUT app and/or to schedule a suicide prevention training, contact Caryn Nielsen with Communities That Care at 801-888-9147 or cn Nielsen@saratogaspringscity.com
