

My name is Jeremy Bergener, and I am running for Eagle Mountain's city council. I would like to help you get to know me a little bit.

I was born and raised in West Valley, UT. I have lived in Utah my entire life. I currently live in City Center. I live here with my wife, Jenna, and our daughter, Remy. We love it here. Jenna and I both work and face the daily commute that many of you also face. I am a manager for the Department of Public Safety's Driver License Division.

In 2002 I began working at an irrigation supply house in Salt Lake as a delivery driver. That was the first time I was introduced to Eagle Mountain. I came out here on a few deliveries to what was a much younger and sprawling city. I love how close the city and houses are to the mountains and the great scenery. Every time I looked for a house, Eagle Mountain was always on my list. When my wife and I began looking for a house in 2017 we were both drawn to this community. We love where we live and want the best for all those around us.

I want to focus on keeping you, the citizen of Eagle Mountain, involved in the legislative process. I want to hear your thoughts and vote to the conscience of those I represent. I want to focus on the way the city develops and how that affects the future infrastructure and the needs growth creates. I would like to limit developments that are going to put a heavy burden on that infrastructure, such as very high density housing. I want to start looking at the businesses that are out here and the impact that inviting businesses will have positively to the residents. This includes jobs, resources, and the taxes from goods sold coming back to the city to benefit the residents.

I want Eagle Mountain to be the best place it can be for my daughter and her future. I want the same for each of you. We have a great city and I hope we can work together to keep it that way.
